WHAT CAN I LEARN?

Students will be able to enumerate accidents, which are common in their places and describe how they happened. They will also be given the chance to tell a story of a situation when something really bad happened to them. There will be an emphasis on the parts of the body and the kind of injuries that may occur when those parts are affected. At the end of this unit, the students will brainstorm on why things go wrong, how they can be prevented and how to see the positive side of every situation. This increases student-to-student interaction.
