He/She will also be aware of useful phrases used to express agreement or disagreement which will allow him/her to communicate with others more effectively. Aside from that, the learner will be able to conduct surveys and to present plans that will pave the way for him/her to highlight the importance of using an effective hook to get the audience's attention during discussions. Besides he/she will have an in-depth knowledge of coordinating conjunctions like and, but, or, so, and content words such as nouns, verbs, adjectives, and adverbs that need to be stressed in a sentence for they carry important meaning, that is why these words are read louder and clearer than other words.

Train your ear by listening to English spoken at normal speed, even if you don't understand everything. Also, practice listening without seeing things written down and don't be afraid to listen to things several times to catch any interesting or unusual vocabulary in there.
